FOREWORD

This is the prelude and the postlude and we are at the intermezzo stage: able to look forward to the future with great satisfaction and yet having the past with its moments of satisfaction and discouragement still fresh in our minds. Obtaining the maximum benefits from secondary school and its extra-curricular aspects, preparing for our immediate future whether it be college or the business world, and participating in classroom antics and class functions with our high school chums, is the past. Having the opportunity to win success, happiness, and the chance to make our contribution to society as adult citizens is our future. We are fully cognizant of the fact that to our parents, relatives, teachers and friends, we owe a great debt of gratitude; for it is they who have been instrumental in guiding us to our present step on the scale of maturity.

The world will look to us as tomorrow's leaders to make this often discordant world a better place in which to live. Perhaps at the time this seems a monumental task, but from the theme of our yearbook Music and Dance—may we find our inspiration. If each of us will go forth sing OUR song of peace and brotherhood, surely we can help to bring harmony within mankind

THIS LEGEND IS DEDICATED:

to the lonely cowboy, strumming his guitar
as he kneels before the glowing campfire . . .

to the Negro slave, chanting in the cotton field . . .

to the child prodigy, Mozart . . .

to the deaf Beethoven, creating his music in the shadow of his loneliness . . .

to the two lovers, swaying to the strains of the Vienna Waltz . . .

to the street urchin, skipping over imaginary puddles . . .

to the drummer boy in the colonial army . . .

to the first man ever to hear the high pitched melody emanating from his homemade woodwind instrument . . .

to the wind and the rain . . .

to all of nature . . .

to the subjects of the Kingdom of Muses, to whom we are grateful for bringing music and rhythm into our souls . . .

DEDICATION

JULIUS C. BERNSTEIN

Principal

After four years of harmonious happiness at Weequahic, the class of June 1957 is ending its career here on a joyous note. Some will continue the rhythm of their education on into the future; others will make work or the armed services the theme of the next few years; but all of you will surely remember with pleasure the rhapsody of your years here at Weequahic. Now, as we reach the finale amid a crescendo of events, we should bear in mind that what variations the future years may bring, your class has always conducted itself with proper self-respect and a high level of inspiration. Weequahic High School sends you forth into the theatre of life with our very best wishes.

TO THE SENIOR CLASS:

Our association has given me many pleasurable and stimulating experiences. These have not been accidental, but rather the results of the combined planning and efforts of the members of the class. It augurs well that you people, who are about to assume your share of adult responsibilities, should have in so many instances displayed such a fine cooperative spirit along with a proper standard of values.

There is perhaps, no more practical hope than my wish that you exploit the native equipment with which you have been endowed and couple it with a proper sense of perspective and the realization that although most of us want to arrive at the same goal, we don't all take the same road.

Congratulations,

Irving J. Goldberg

In Loving Memory of

MARILYN THALER

The sun gently brings a flower to light
It blooms through the day and dims at night,
It's petals once moist with nature's sweet kiss
Return to its Maker where cometh all bliss.

And so with a life that is given to earth
That spreads joy, happiness, and untold mirth;
But when the sign beckons, the radiance must cease
And return to its Maker and eternal peace.

BATTLE HYMN OF

Mine eyes have seen the coming of a crowd of senior A's;
They are racing for their homeroom where begin all happy days.
Sain's already waiting with a cheery welcome gaze,
She came at six o'clock.

Larry's sending paper planes to the front and to the rear,
While our secretary Kolton checks to see who's really here.
Bank who came with Mr. B. admires Sue's cashmere.
It's orlon; what a shock!

Bev and Bebe who are drafted to assist our Miss Shapiro
Find Al Rose collecting money; yes, that boy can really go.
Hermene who's on the porch is calling 314, you know;
She's locked out in the snow!

Shapiro by the door will let no late-comers go by her,
But as the bell is ringing in runs half-dressed Phyllis Meyer.
Iris Denner still sits laughing; will her funny-bone ere tire?
While detention Bob Sochor does acquire.

Next to "Robert Harding," actor, on the overcrowded board
Miller writes a clash day notice with the chalk we like to hoard.
Jerry Weinstein reads the Ledger to find out which players scored;
To have fun is Fran's only desire.

Now Bev Solomon with chem notes comes a-running through the door;
In her haste she drops her notebook—there's a big dent in the floor!
Nick takes out a picture while Joe wonders what's in store—
His yard or Alaska's shore?

Rhoda Gold sits surrounded by her lipstick and a comb,
Murray Lieb sends out his homework and hopes it will come home.
Selma sits so quietly; for never does she roam,
And a dog runs through the door.

Fred Rothman would date Ruth but his bankroll is deplete.
On assembly day Rosanne is never in her seat,
Scaratowsky tells Shapiro of Litwak's latest feat,
She's in the Orchestra.

Patti Goldman, who for two years was our class comedienne
Now reads everything by Tolstoy and those other learned men.
Miss Shapiro reads the notices and declares a second time.
"They're for your benefit, not mine!"

Wait, I spot the carrot-top of our big deal, Irwin Facher,
Always chasing Wilma Bernhaut, will he ever really catch her?
Hep Naomi leads a cheer—in spirit none can ever match her,
Calling, "one, two, three, Shaneholtz!"

RAGTIME BAND

Rehearsal has just begun. The musicians are scattered; their brows are puckered with concern. The distraught maestro, the great "Spike" Schwartz, attempts to quiet the players by rapping his baton on his stand. Ronny Baer, the first violinist, settles the restless bunch by reading the day's schedule. Sheila Stein and Lynn Chasen, the band's librarians, wait patiently for Jerry Gross to arrive before checking the roster of those present. Rehearsal has been in progress for a short time, when Eleanor Brody is found kibitzing with Schushie (Ilene) Schulaner, who is pleading for contributions to the Musicians' Union. More interruptions– Eileen Perlman has lost her comb–Marcia Rudman has an extra one. Fran Goldfarb comes in from the outskirts of civilization and prepares for her solo. Barbara Newman and Paula Kaplan annoy their fellow-artists for money for the Calumet. Order is finally restored. Mel Goldstein takes orders for the New York Times. In desperation, Spike appoints two Sergeants of Arms, namely Larry Spindel and Herb Kessler. Judy Redlus is caught running a lab ring with Herb Wallack and Arnold Kahn. This confusion subsides after our one and only banker, Myra Osterweil, finishes her payment. The rehearsal must go on!

There are more troubles–Sue Feintuch is exhausted from her dancing lessons–Bob Goetze and Herb Brosniak can't stop laughing (they have just heard another standard musician's joke). Despite the tuning-up noise, Rose Marmur and Herman Weinstock are unaffected. The walls of our rehearsal hall are being marked with equations written by Steve Goldstein and corrected by Moe Levitt. Judy Muskat brings the pandemonium to a climax, by reporting the results of the last Musician's Council. The great maestro is disgruntled. His artistic temperament is reacting. But it's all in a days' work. Schwartz's Ragtime Band has finished rehearsing for the day. They'll be back tomorrow, with new sour notes and melodies.

OUR MOST

Waltzing into homeroom 101, we are cheerfully greeted by Mr. Green, "Our Most Happy Fella." He is frantically pounding on the desk shouting, "Will you kids keep quiet now!" Irene Edelson takes advantage of the few minutes silence to read the Bible. "Jack da Rock" Markowitz rushes through the notices, and before the stampede to the mirror, (it's hair combing time) Mike Merkin squeezes in the O. B. A. news. This is the only time we are all in our seats, so Pat Bredamus can take the attendance in a hurry. Harry Lemmert and Johnny Walker are taking bets as to whether or not Herb Elbern will make the 8:30 bell. In the rear of the room we hear the moans of Maria, Harriet and Penny, pleading "Somebody Somewhere" be a doll and come across with the history notes. Meanwhile, Joe and Ken explore a combination of Jazz and Bach (it always sounds like rock and roll) while Phyllis Epstein provides background music with her Stradivarius. Gwendora Tate, our soprano, is exercising her vocal chords to the strains of "Poco Palo" and "Cindy Of Cindy" gives free Cha Cha lessons to Marty "Mouse" Stolinsky and James Tucker. Cindy is convinced that the boys are klutzes and have two left feet. "Davy Crocket" Newman and Ira, our newest recruit, watch with amusement.

We never found out how Pat "the quiet one" Marlowe and Fale Haber could manage to study in this din. Sandy Dubman just recognized the song being chanted, as the same one played in the Irvington House last night. Marie ("the dawn is breaking") Maisano and Barbara ("blonde bombshell") Reinhardt are comparing their pin-up pictures and comparing their finer points. Joel, Jerry and Al are loudly discussing their favorite pastime, "Standing on the Corner of Syds Watching All the 2A Girls Go By." Barry Walters is mourning over his chem. rejects and Buzz is combing his "curly lox?" Cindy and Helen are trying to figure out which of their Donnys has the "toni." While Myrna chews her nails hoping for that scholarship to Douglass to come through, she has more pleasant moments thinking of her Jackie.

And so ends another morning in "Our Most Happy Fella's" homeroom—homeroom 101.

FOLLIES

Homeroom 106 would remind any passersby of the backstage of a theater. Everyone is either moving about, talking or groaning. In one corner we find the musicians: Chuck Goldstein, Marc Bain, Linda Newman, Dave Walkstein and Stu Oderman. The passerby couldn't help but notice Bill Sloan, Howard Sokolov, Steve Maybaum, Carl Mann and Dave Rosenzweig singing about last night's chem. homework or a tricky solid geometry test. Julian Epstein, our Bible chairman, is competing with Calumet salesmen Steve Lipkins and Burt Dubowy in a yelling contest. Les Goldstein and Bob Kapelsohn place their order for the next edition of the Calumet while Mermen Mike Antopol and Marc Govrin signal their intentions to do the same (while discussing a recent swim meet). Mrs. Farber, however, with her pleasant voice, always has the last word.

Let us proceed from backstage to the footlights where our dancing girls can be found. If we were students two or three decades ago we could safely boast of the "most beautiful showgirls in the world." Our sextet of cheesecake consists of our jazz singer Janet Williams, Phyllis Solomon, Mary Ann Belson, Fay Mittelman, Linda Newman and Carol Kaplan. They certainly have box-office appeal. Jerry Melnick, Jay Green, Joe Padula and Jack Pinnas seem to think that they're quite goodlooking too. Even their English homework looks good! In fact, some day Stu Oderman, our Ira Gershwin, will include them in a broadway show that he is in the process of writing, "FARBER'S FOLLIES."

Her follies, her follies,
Her Maxes and Mollies
Her homeroom's confusion
Mixed with illusion
Of our keeping quiet
Try it!
From Bible to notices
We've bloomed like lotuses,
Continuously talking
Forever squawking.
In the years to come
Our homeroom will be remembered
As one not glum.
Rather noisy but nice
We'll be quiet as mice
After Graduation!

BUTLER'S

Just knock three times and whisper low because you are now entering Mrs. Butler's homeroom. Thiss cooperative clan begins their morning earlier than most, so that by the ringing of the 8:30 bell we have completed the reading of the Bible, taken the attendance and had the notices of the day read. Lorraine Lutter attempts to sneak a few words to Dorothea Redwood, and guess who is caught in the act? Rhoda Heiber now has six days of detention instead of her usual five. Wait a moment—the clump of Lainie Larkey's feigned tiptoeing into the room is heard. Her excuses are to no avail and the homeroom awaits the sentence. As the verdict of "double detention" is given, a snicker from Joan Hill and Elsa Rubenstein pierces the silent room.

Barbara Daniels and Joan Hupart discuss Saturday night dates as Judy Chordock tries to get her $.02 in.

Our new additions, Sharon Balis and Irene Hollander, have quickly become adjusted to Mrs. Butler's rules. In the dead silence a meek voice is heard. "Does anybody want the New York Times?" That's our Roberta Cohen who is forever collecting for one charity or another.

Our Hideaway makes a great contribution to the O. B. A. Council with our representative, Jadwiga Schreiber. Secretary Francine Bell is—of all things—closing the windows again. Our majorette, Doris Levine struts past Fran, sporting her new pixie haircut. To the other extreme we find Iris Karnofsky, sporting her "new" pony tail.

After stumbling through myriads of red tape, Robert Mandel finally gets 2½ seconds to report on 4A Class Council news. Beverly Green is oblivious to her surroundings due to a certain Eddy. The Hideaway is noted for its crooner and polished Romeo, Michael Weissman, who serenades his present Juliet, Carol Settimo. Mrs. Butler wonders whether this is the local beauty parlor or an office, since Harriet Einzig always seems to be combing her "Golden locks." Competition in gum chewing is very keen between Harvey Kirsch and Mirian Perlman. Who can crack the loudest? Mrs. Butler's right-hand "man" is Judy Tuller who helps decide the winner and also tries to abide by the "Golden Rule Of Silence." Sondra Cohen, the other right-hand-"man," tends to violate it.

Edna Spielberg's newest suggestion is the O. B. A. credit should be extended to telephone operators. Arlene Libes gets the blue ribbon for towing the line for four years.

The characters in the Hideaway are real, and any similarity to persons in here and out there are purely factual.

LATER THAN YOU THINK

The room at the end of the second floor is slowly filling up. Its 8:20 and the students are bursting with enthusiasm, for another day of school is about to begin. At 8:24, Barbara Wallace, loaded down with a cumbersome bundle of the New York Times, is trying desperately to beat the bell.

Robert Schneider takes his usual place in front of the room and reads the Bible, which is the usual signal for the low roar in the back of the room. After the noise has subsided, and then continues again in mounting volume, our chairman, Ed Eisen, makes a vain attempt to read the day's notices, while Mr. Lemerman tries to quiet the class.

About this time, Charles Arlaus tells Marty Bedrock and Norman Ellenport about his exciting weekend. You will also find Charles trying to get banking orders simultaneously.

Yesterday there was a meeting of the class council, and Harriet Bloom utters a plea for a vote on the colors for our gowns. It is decided that a few members of the 207 mob would like purple. Another speaker? Naturally, it is our Legend representitive, Christine Wanat, asking for baby pictures. A protest arises from Eddie Sherr, who claims that he never was a baby. He is shouted down by Abbie Sissleman who believes otherwise.

Barbara Galowitz now takes her turn and attempts to convince Grant Worsley that the Calumet is a worthwhile investment. Herbert Fasteau manages to calm Pat Bolger and Rosalie Frisco, and makes the startling statement that our Legend will cost a mint if we don't "get those ads." During this conversation, Sheila Fischman is trying desperately to count heads for attendance.

Wait a moment! Today is a day of distinction. Teddy Jellinek has come out from behind his books to talk to the class—wouldn't you know it—he's asking for money. This request is the reason for the blank stare on Henry Thayer's face.

Just about now, Helen Metger decides her hair needs combing, and Betty Reid decides her history homework should be done. Ira Delman, through all this confusion, is still studying for a test that he's determined to get an "A" on, and this accounts for his not hearing the announcements about food for the Prom made by Barbara Feldman.

Irwin Korn is not at all moved by this, for he is waiting for the baseball season to start so he can start betting. Janet Lee and Peter Proll are perhaps the most silent members of 207. Their minds are probably many miles away.

We have all survived another morning in homeroom 207. There aren't too many left to enjoy and remember. So—"Enjoy Yourself Its Later Than You Think."

The long trudge to the third floor doesn't seem to bother the hep cats of H. R. 304. When everyone finally pumps across the threshold at 8:31, the confusion stops—the bedlam begins—and the good times roll.

As Be-Bop Berney rolls in with his physics labs, top songstress Shirley Cummings tries to read the hit parale notices, and Patti Stone asks, "Won't you give me a chance?" as she counts heads for the tenth time. Paperboy, Steve (Ozzie) Greenwald sings out, "You want it, you need it, you'll love it,—the New York Times," while Lois Schneiderman flutters like a butterfly to collect Legend ads.

Myrna Kressler and Pearl Hendler talk about their present loves, and Fern Adler bunny hops over to find the history homework.

Overhearing the taboo word "Chemistry," Jackie Spiegal and Judy Schwartz suddenly feel a pang of nausea and do the creep across the room to get the rejected labs from Stuart Rosenblatt.

After Arlene Rothman concludes the morning prayer, Margie Morse starts us rockin' with "Memories of You," while Gail Rosenberg is singin' the blues because no one will buy the Calumet. Although Arlene Mintz calls us hound dogs we usually don't listen to the class council news.

Gene Gibbs seems miles away reading his paper as Richard Krieg rocks around the clock waiting for the bell to buzz so he can meet his baby doll. Elain Saunders, Paula Rudnick and Fran Heyman sing out the notes on their crushes, while Judi (Saphire) Rosenbaum and Irene Rosenberg plan next week's cut day to see that jumpin' rock and roll show.

Naomi Perlman explains the art of making a hole in a bagel, and Helaine Narod still tries to figure out why "Love Is So Strange." In the meantime, Mayfield Bradman, feeling jim dandy, looks around and says, "Ain't That A Shame?"

Sheila Elson and Marty Fendrick are insisting, on their word of honor, that they weren't talking after the bell rang. Still they are forced through the "Brown Door" into solitary confinement a la Berney.

Fields Howard, our "Great Pretender," tells of the twenty touchdowns he made in Saturday's game, when the bell rings and Marcia Stein and Sandy Schneider, who all this time have been standing outside persuading Mr. Seltzer not to make them get a late slip, come in singing, "Yes it's Us and We're Late Again!"

And so, the ten minutes of shakin', rattlin', and rollin' have ended. Mr. Berney, a bit relieved, picks up the scraps of newspaper and paper airplanes and sings to himself, "Got Along Without Them Before I Met Them, Gonna Get Along Without Them Now!" (Until tomorrow, anyway).

ARRANGER

MADE OF THIS

A mother loves her children, admonishes them, encourages them and advises them. She laughs with them and shares their most intimate secrets. Her children respond to this attention as normal children should. They are often obstinate, sometimes pleasing, rarely perfect, but loving always.

It is with this introduction that we attempt to put into tangible evidence the frank and tender feelings that we of Homeroom 314 and "Mother Murray" share.

The activity that takes place in the sprawling room near the biology lab is difficult to express, but certainly not to hear. Besides being an affectionate crew, the group that inhabits 314 is also a vociferous one.

Volumes of laughter come from the Orris section, as Andy Weintraub (or collegiate caballero), Norman Springer (our intellectual romeo), and Jerry Perlman, our man about town, are amused by Adrienne's gaiety. On the other hand, Bobbye Bandell is seriously peering in the mirror. Bobbye interprets "homeroom" literally, as she delicately applies mascara, eye shadow and spray-net. Suddenly Lois Bromberg screams! She has just been hit in the mouth by a badly aimed Bandell spray. She soon realizes that there's to be a chemistry test first period. Doing ten hours studying in ten minutes, our chemist seeks aid from Jack Cohen, 14's answer to George Martino. 314's question to Mr. Martino is our Secretary, Mimi Lemerman, who is trying to memorize valences. After 6 months of chemistry she has decided that the time has finally come. This process is interrupted by "the beat" coming from the "bop brothers," Abe (Perez) Cooper and Moishe Freedman, the Harry James of 314. They are beating out the rhythm with "hep" emotion, while Marcia (Mambo) Kobrin and Barbara (Cha-Cha) Greenspan swing to the rhythm that's "hip."

Viewing this scene with obvious delight is Gloria Jacoby, who is happy because she has just enlisted the aid of our two literary critics, Judy Wolfe and Linda Weiss, the "Gold dust twins." Linda has just finished addressing a letter to Will Shakespeare advising him not to publish ROMEO AND JULIET. "It will never sell," she says. Judy, however, disagrees. "The ontogeny will recapitulate philogeny," she states, and with these words she sits down. Liinda agrees not to write the letter and Will decides to publish ROMEO AND JULIET—it becomes a hit!

Our literary scent turns to the political arena as 314's Eisenhower supporter, Sandy Herzfeld, gets on his soap-box. Soon, the dirt starts to crumble and Mrs. Murray starts crying about her crushed camellias. Sandy calms the "teach" and is joined by Barry Zalaznick, Eileen Woltman, and Bea Austrager. Sandy leaves the political limelight with the cry of "Hail the Fuhrer."

Afraid of being called un-American, Mrs. Murray promptly tries to halt this display and cries to the heavens for salvation. Her answer comes from our deceiving angel, Roz Zevin, who respectfully reads Proverbs—section 96.

Mrs. Murray is still quite upset. Not only have her camellias been crushed, but Peggy Zager has lost the money for the New York Times and our carrot-topped Marilyn Schechter (Mrs. Murray's pride and joy) goofed on a test—she got a "B"! Marilyn is making up for this deficiency by really "hitting her books."

Activity with books of a different kind are engaged in by Joe Davidson and Norman Siminoff. These two "Bookies" are taking bets on the Yankees, the Knickerbockers and the length of Joan Gonzer's pony tail. Joan, however, is too busy administering seditives to Lems to be interested in her pari-mutual ratings.

Priscilla Winn and Steve Weiss are just about the only quiet witnesses. As Steve describes last Sat. night's date, Pris, who is copying labs, listens to an experiment of an extremely different nature.

Despite the chaos, Beverly Wynn finds something to cheer about and does a cartwheel over Capt. Lois Bromberg. The floor is cleared as a practice session of the squad commences.

Suddenly a piercing scream arises from the back of the room. Ethel Tunis has just announced that LEGEND pictures will be taken tomorrow.

All the pride and anxiety of being a Senior A homeroom teacher has gone to Mrs. Murray's head. Her family has become too huge to cope with—they will have to disperse—and they will. Come back to visit Mama Murray? Their intentions are good—but circumstances are often preventitive. Many will never re-enter 314. Many will never return—but all will remember. For the laughter, the sadness, the cramming, the joy—oh, memories are made of this!

GIVE ME FIVE

If in passing through the third floor corridors one should see a group of students impatiently waiting outside room 318, they should realize that the throng of humanity is none other than Mr. Schulman's homeroom class.

At precisely 8:24 A.M., twenty minutes and thirty seconds after Steve Buratowski's arrival, Gary Platzer stops his idle chatter to announce the arrival of Mr. Schulman. By 8:27 A.M. everyone is snuggled in the wrong chair or off on an expedition to the betting corner. Todays bets are on the 8:30 bell or Seymour Schanerman's arriving first.

With seconds to spare, Paul Rabinowitz flashes across the threshold to his seat where he immediately takes to his hobby of solid geometry. As the 8:30 bell rings and Richie Lesnick, class chairman, tries earnestly to bring the class to order, Richie Diamond and "Peanuts" Goldenberg lead them to complete disorder while Alan Dorfman debates whether or not to join them. During this period of time, Ethel Schauffler and Judy Roznoy are busy eating their breakfast. Pat Tower, Mr. Schulman's private secretary, is either counting heads or recording marks, while Faye Bardin, class secretary, is busy counting heads and gossiping with Norma Guritsky. Gerry Beatty and Harold Gold extend their courtesy to Preacher Larry Belford, who reads the Bible after "Friendly Persuasion."

Sandie Levine and Jayne Levine (no relation) are so eager to come to school that they don't have enough time to comb their hair or put on their make-up at home, so the classroom will have to do. Charlie Meyer, sitting behind Sandie, dreams about Shop-Rite, while Irving Slomowitz tries to distract his attention by talking about Bob Pettit. Even Melvyn Parnes' clowning can't keep Ed Komurek off the Star Ledger. Fred (the bill collector) Umschweiss is busy annoying everyone trying to get their lunch money for the Calumet and the Times, and Dennis Guzenhauser, who rain nor sleet nor snow can stop, delivers the papers to the worthy customers. It seems in vain to distract Sue Rieglehaupt from talking about her future husband.

When the 8:40 bell rings, everyone is chased by Fred Bolton, trying desperately to catch someone—anyone—who will listen to the latest about his new car.

In conclusion, all we can say, is that homerooms come and go, but homeroom 318 is "Gone."

FAIR LADY

The early sunlight through the window streams,
Striking the overture of 319.
Our maestro, Mrs. Twardus, is the first to be seen,
Marking history papers with a knowing gleam.
She staunchly declares, with great provocation.
"Is this what they call Secondary Education?"
Standing by are her aids, Phyllis and Cecelle,
Collecting forged absence notes with vigor and zeal.
After reading these notes they're about to complain,
The excuse for each absence is the "Rain in Spain."
Into the room like two vibrant chimes
March Geraldine and Irene with the Trib and the Times.
Stan Cohen, with the sport section in tow,
Awaits the arrival of Mike Tischio.
Our romeo, Mike, enters with this greeting to Stan,
"Why Can't A Woman Be More Like A Man?"
Men are so honest, historically fair,
But we must not forget, they're thoroughly square.
At 8:25 enters Joel Cohen in great sorrow,
Announcing his need of some homework to borrow.
"With A Little Bit Of Luck," he adds with a smirk,
"It's easy for me when the others all work."
Our football hero, Frankie, innocently sits
With telltale lipstick adorning his lips.
The maestro, in reproof, raises one eye,
"Don't blame me," says Frank, "I'm An Ordinary Guy."
At that hour no one knows there could be no heat,
For on the radiator Phyllis Dubrow has taken her seat.
"Wouldn't It Be Loverly," she says with a drawl,
"If there was only some gossip to tell Blumenthal."
She then observes Terrill and Adrienne adjourn to their places
And finally at 8:29 Mimi Blumenthal races
Into the room just in time
For Tony Handler's deliverance of Psalm 69.
And here's Tobby Schneider huffing and puffing,
That she is late there could be no bluffing.
"I Could Have Danced All Night," she says with despair,
And with a last burst of energy slumps in her chair.
The notices are read, the class is in repose
As Charlotte and Rita discuss their new clothes.
Arron Mantell renders his woeful tale
That the Calumet is again on sale.
'Just You Wait," 319, "Just You Wait,"
You'll be sorry when your money comes too late.
Martin Bodner sneaks as stealthily as he can,
Toward the back of the room and Gary Grossman.
Mrs. Twardus is consoled, for she has no fear
Of two quiet students, John and Mary Scherer.
At his desk sits Richie Magliacano in quite a stew
Over last night's homework that he forgot to do.
His work accomplished, he yells to his clan,
"I Did It, I Did It, I've got this beat, Man."
A sparkler glows on the hand of Madeline G.
Judy Sevrin sighs, "Why couldn't it happen to me!"
While Bob Suks is still questioning the accuracy
Of Diane Samet's date with Elvis Presley.
Arleen Rosenblatt giggles with obvious glee
At Bob Littman's frantic attempts at chemistry.
Cokkie Fertig watches with an air circumspect,
She's the possessor of a quadruple reject.
"What a fool I was," says our maestro, with rue,
"Of all the homerooms, I had to get you."
"You Senior A's think you are so true blue
But we can still run this school, "Without You."
She says this sternly, then adds with a smile,
"You must know class, that I've been fooling all the while, for . . .
"I've Grown Accustomed To Your Face,"
You always make my day begin.
I've grown accustomed to the shout
That always is about,
Your fears, your joys,
You girls, you boys,
Are second children to me now.
But I so deeply do regret
That when the fall term does appear,
You students won't be here
And another homeroom I will get.
Yes, "I've Grown Accustomed To Your Face."

"Thanks for

We were youngsters then, when it all began
This great adventure of a four year span
We emerged from roots which were deep and strong
And were thrust insecurely to a sprawling throng
We clung to old ties, but made new ones too
Friendships began, horizons rose into view.

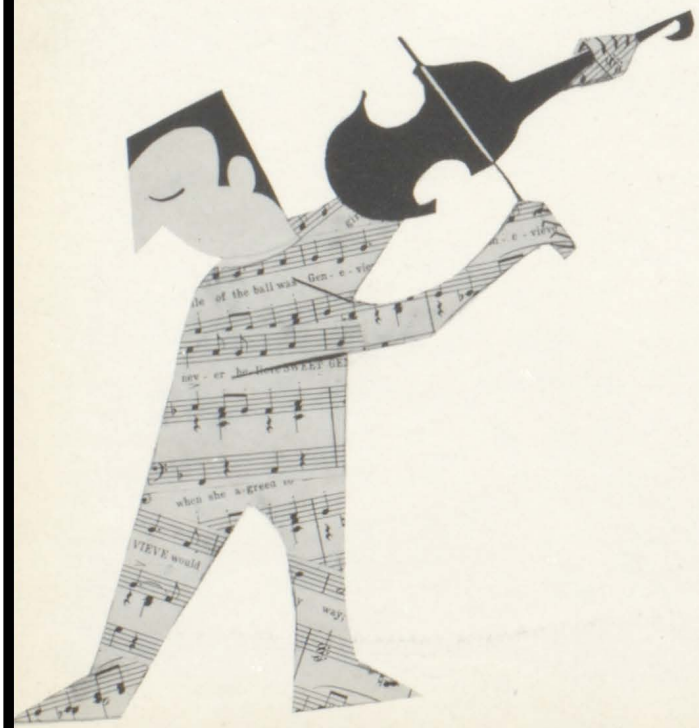

We went up Down stairways
We ran through the hall
We ate at Cohen's
Man, we dug it all
We crooned cool tunes
Man, we really were sent
On being Hip freshmen, we were intent
Conformity played a role that was huge
Jacket Clubs formed, our fears subtrefuged—
We united in groups,
We needed each other
All our clothes were the same,
We rebelled 'gainst Dad and Mother
So it seemed that all individualism submerged
Because of this orientation new personalities soon surged —
For that year in high school had passed oh so soon
And many emerged from their encasing cocoon,
Some became shy, some became bolder
But all had become just a little bit older
One year had passed.
A lot had been learned
In many Frosh hearts great ambitions burned
To become a great athlete of Olympic fame
Or to beat out your girlfriends in that old dating game.

But time came marching, it could not halt
And the days disappeared like the froth on a malt
Never to be relived—or shared once more
But instead to be had in a great memory store.

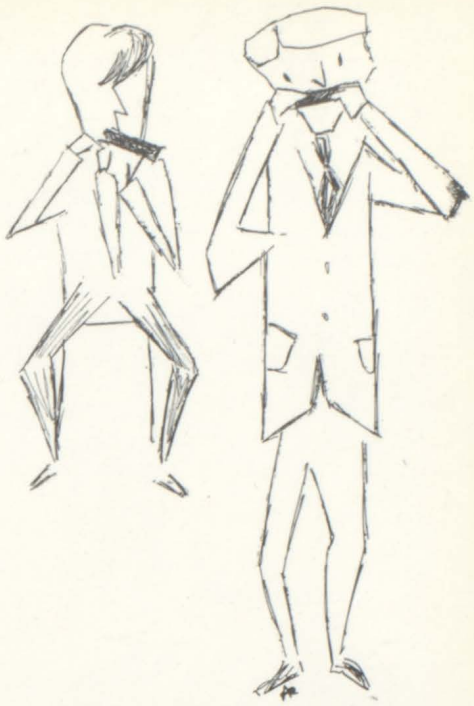

From two camps we diverged, to the main one you know
Madison and Annex merged, like AF of L, CIO.
Into one large union that was not united
Came this new group of sophomores, and we were excited
For we had reached the wigwam—the main teepee on the hill
We were members of the key tribe which to some was quite a thrill
We watched our older brothers, with reverence we did sigh
For us little sophomores—seemed the saints were marching by
We were so blinded by this blaze, that very few could see
That these elder gods we worshiped were just an older you or me
We strove to really get with it
We joined French Club, Bridge Club, and such
Thus longing to acquire that Weequahic touch
We went to games, we cheered with force
Getting to be part of this union was great of course
Our literary bugs flew to the Calumet
Our glory mongers played football, or tried, you bet
Some girls were invited to the Prom or Hop
In our young eyes they had reached the top
For that's what we thought in our day as a sophomore
When that "Indian Legend" was becoming our lore
For we were living in worship and glory
And the great revelations came later in our story.

Then Juniors we were, on the ladder we rose
And our latent politicians were waked from repose
Elections were held with the greatest of care
And the politicians hoped that in honor they'd share
But some must win and some must lose
For life has decisions and one must choose
But even the losers profited from that story
For they gained in maturity what they lost in glory.

We had a class party with pizza and coke
And great feelings of friendship and warmth did evoke
For the gap in our units became less and less wide
And our whole Junior family was glowing with pride
And all of our members were proud to confess

the Memory"

In tones that spoke of spirit and zest
That we were the Class of June '57
And together we'd found an inlet to heaven.

Like Rodgers and Hammerstein, we composed a class song
The words weren't funny, the rhythm was wrong
But the warmth was there, that intangible feeling
That youngsters can get when through clouds they're reeling
For those were the times we shall treasure forever
That wonderful feeling of "being together."

Our tribe gave a square dance, it was held in the gym
And the shouts and the calling created a din
To the reel we did wheel, to the stomp we did clomp
And our first event was a free-flinging romp.

And then came 3A it was equally grand
We seemed to be flying for time would not stand
As part of the union we became a key tool
That ran the machine that governs our school
As for O.B.A. our boys did run
With our support they had their place in the sun.

That was the year that our actors did spring
And the general cry was "That play is the thing."
Some painted scenery, some acted well
And all complained of tickets in a mess that was . . . swell.

We had a picnic attended by all
Even the ants had a great game of ball
Then Yale sculling crew of '61
Created a big splash, we were drenched with fun
We gorged ourselves on food and jokes
The joy we shared was not a hoax
For some of us sensed that this soon would end
And the road towards the future took its final bend.

In rolled the Class of June '57
They became wheels that went round
And because of their fame and their great self-esteem
You could'nt keep them on the ground
Most of them drove as all round wheels should
And very few were square
They all hopped to it, when 4B came round
When the Carousel stopped there
All of them swelled with that great Senior pride
And despite their broad grins

There was doubt deep inside
For 4A was coming—the end of the trail
And into new harbors these schooners would sail
Some would join in marital glee
Some off to college to loll in ivy
Some to work for Uncle Sam
Others to become—that "Grey Flanneled Man"
But many had uncertainties and so they did fear
What was in it for them in the folowing year.

Group spirit was ebbing
For the tides were coming in
Instead of mass groups
Closer friendships did win
And some of us wished that these days would be o'er
For ennui can set in, and the tribe can be a bore
While others clung to each minute with care

For they knew that the future'd be harder to bear
To the Prom and to "G" day all eyes were turned
But the heart it looked backwards—for memories it yearned
As it'd been good, and it'd been bad
A taste of life we knew we'd had
And so with brave new hearts we step away
I guess that's what all classes say
And yet we feel that ours was special—our very own
And time won't decay, nor years de-throne
Our great elation—our moments of despair —
These were ours alone—this no one may share.

OPENING NIGHT

The love of the theater is a fire which burns brightly in the hearts of its aspirants. It will never be reduced to ashes as long as the desire for self-expression exists. These desires, whether intact or inert, have been nobly personified by the thespians of our class.

We have striven to bring a taste of the dramatic arts to our school under the influential direction of Mr. Frank DeLisi. The greatest of our accomplishments was the wealth of knowledge and pure enjoyment that we attained from our participation. Truly, it has been an inspiration for us all, whether or not we endeavor to establish a career in the theater.

The memories shall, forever, sing sweetly in our souls, and we shall aways remember the joyful anticipation that only an "opening night" can bring.

Members of the class of June, 1957 occupied key positions on the Indian football squad. The stellar offensive and defensive play of captain Grant Worsley earned him three letters and an honorable mention All-City berth. The veteran halfback was on the receiving end of two long touchdown passes from quarterback Al Viscido in th '56 Thanksgiving game at Hillside; the farewell performance for members of our class. Viscido, sidelined by injuries for almost his entire junior year, came back strong in his final season to take over the signal-calling job in Coach Lou Stamelman's T-formation offense. Al scored the Indians' first '56 touchdown and closed out his career by pitching those two touchdown aerials to Worsley.

Thanksgiving of 1956 was quite a day for the class of 1957. Three of our linemen also closed out distinguished careers on that date. Though seriously hampered by injuries, Alan Goldenberg turned in enough outstanding performances at tackle to earn two varsity letters. Center Frank Colantuono was a tower of strength on the Indian line as his jarring tackles throttled rival ball carriers and his vicious blocking opened a great many holes for Weequahic backs. Weintraub saw a great deal of action on punting situations and his fine play was responsible for many successful Indian boots.

Though lacking in quantity, members of the class of 1957 supplied a great deal of quality to our Indian baseball team. Infielder Henry (Toughie) Thayer began the '56 season on the bench but blasted his way into the starting lineup, taking over the shortstop position. Toughie kept right on hitting and finished the season at a sensational .407 dip. It's certainly no coincidence that the Indians, after losing their first six games, began to win almost as soon as Henry became a regular. Thayer, who was unanimously elected team captain in his senior year, shifted to second base for the final campaign and turned in many brilliant plays at the keystone position.

Southpaw hurler Mark Govrin shone in relief during his junior year and became the Indians' number one starter in 1957. Mark threw a no-hitter at South Side in his first varsity start; an auspicious beginning if there ever was one.

Catcher Ed Komurek and Andy Weintraub proved invaluable to Coach Spike Schwartz by handling the coaching duties. Komurek stepped out of the 3rd base box long enough to drive in the winning run in a critical early season game.

Righthander Joe Davidson supplied the Indians with needed pitching depth as they engaged in a thrilling 4-team fight for the city title.

BASKETBALL

With almost his entire squad composed of seasoned veterans, sophomore coach Lester Fein brought Weequahic its first city cage championship since the 1947-48 campaign. Our basketeers swept through their city league schedule with a surprising 9-1 record and experienced very little difficulty in clinching the title.

Directing this championship squad from his backcourt play-maker's role was our aggressive, scrapping, hustling guard—Toughie Thayer. Toughie, probably the team's best defensive player, also possessed a fine two-handed set shot which was chiefly responsible for his eight point per game average. Richie Magliacano, a varsity letter winner as a junior, supplied the team with much needed reserve strength. Mag, although he was out for a good part of the senior year due to a knee injury, was heavily counted upon by Coach Fein, particulary as a rebounder.

TRACK AND

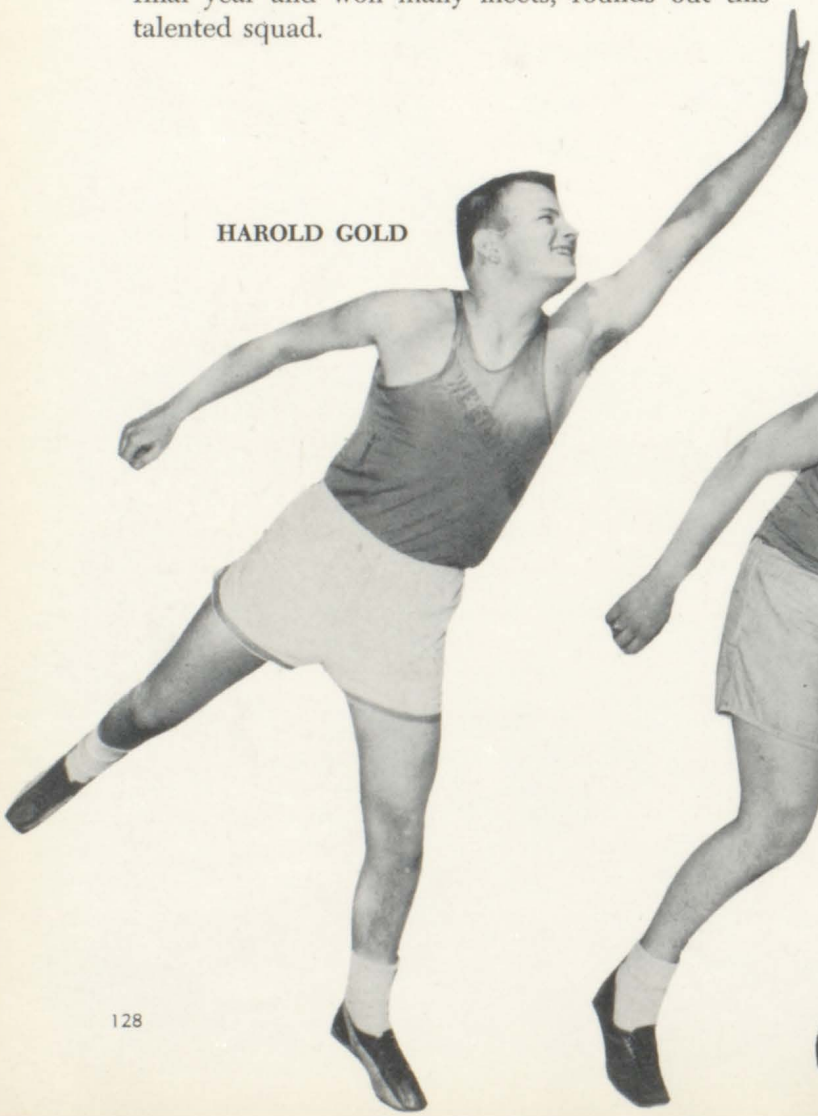

The 1957 outdoor track team shows the potential of being one of the school's best, even at this early date when the Legend is going to press. In the team's second year of indoor competition, it placed second in the City League Individual Meet. The team is composed of six senior lettermen who will be missed next season. Jerry Gross and Alan Rose were two three-year lettermen who were consistent scorers for the team. The versatile Gross obtained many points in the half mile and the broad jump, while the jet-propelled Rose performed capably in the sprints and the high jump. There will undoubtedly be a scarcity of hurdlers next season as the team will lose three fine ones in Nick Geraci, Grant Worsley, and Harold Gold. Grant, who won two letters in this sport, also combined with Gross to form a winning combination in the broad jump. Nick Geraci in the pole vault, Harold Gold in the shot put, and Steve Lipkins in the quarter mile were of valuable assistance to the team. Joe Geraci, a sprinter who converted to the quarter mile in his final year and won many meets, rounds out this talented squad.

CROSS COUNTRY

Great determination, a balanced squad, and an experienced coach were the component parts of Weequahic's first City Championship Cross Country team in twenty years. Coach Meyer (Spike) Schwartz, in his second season as Weequahic's cross country mentor, coached brilliantly in this truly successful season. Jerry Gross was a prominent factor in the team's drive to the championship. Gross climaxed his four year harrier career by copping seventh place in the City Meet and thirty-seventh place in the State Meet. He received four letters for his efforts in this sport. Alan Rose, Nick Geraci, and Larry Belford exhibited fine long distance running ability and contributed many great services to this championship team.

Ending its second season of competition with a surprise 1-1 tie against powerful Barringer, Weequahic's soccer team clinched third place in the City League and earned itself the title of "spoiler." All season long, the Indians, under the tutelage of Coach Joseph Nerenberg, came up with a surprise score when the cards were stacked against them. On the whole, the boys played much better than their 6-5-2 record would indicate.

The team was led by two defensemen, co-captains Harold Gold and Barry Zalaznick. Barry was the star half-back, a scrappy never-say-die- type of player who always seemed to be on the move. It was Zalaznick who bolstered the defense and knit it into the team's forte. In Hal, Coach Nerenberg found his fullback ace; a big, bruising player who could both take it and dish it out. Playing only his first year of soccer, Gold quickly adapted himself and soon could outdistance everyone on the team with his towering punts.

Also important to the team was the presence of two other senior defensemen: Julian Epstein and Gerald Beatty. Julie, teaming with Gold to form one of the better fullback combinations in the city, played a heady game; calling the signals on the backline and continually keeping the opposition guessing as to what he was going to do. Gerry played a usually cautious, but sometimes daring game, and was the one to be given the assignment of covering the opposition's "big man."

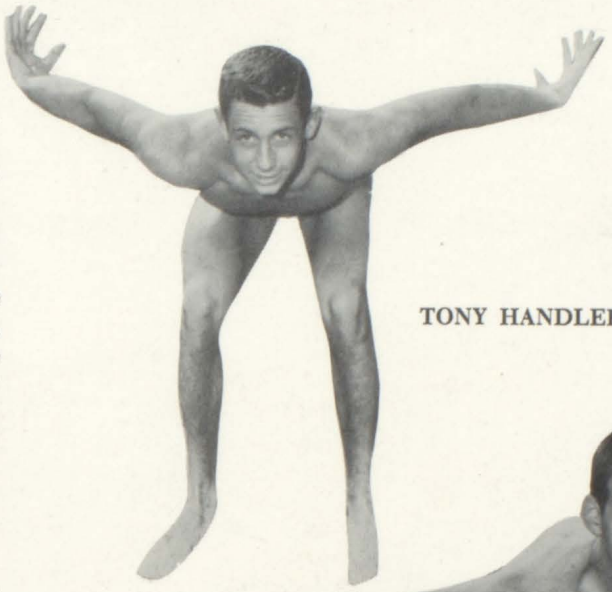

SWIMMING

With the Class of June 1957 supplying many valuable members, Weequahic's swimming team under the coaching reins of Walter Eisenberg, completed two of its most successful campaigns in 1956 and 1957. In 1956 the Indian natators came through with their first city title since 1952 in a meet high-lighted by Tony Handler's second place finish in the 100 yd. breast stroke. In the same meet Mark Govrin splashed his way to a third place in the 200 yd. free style, and Larry Lehman, completing his third and last season of high school swimming, placed fifth in the 100 yd. free style.

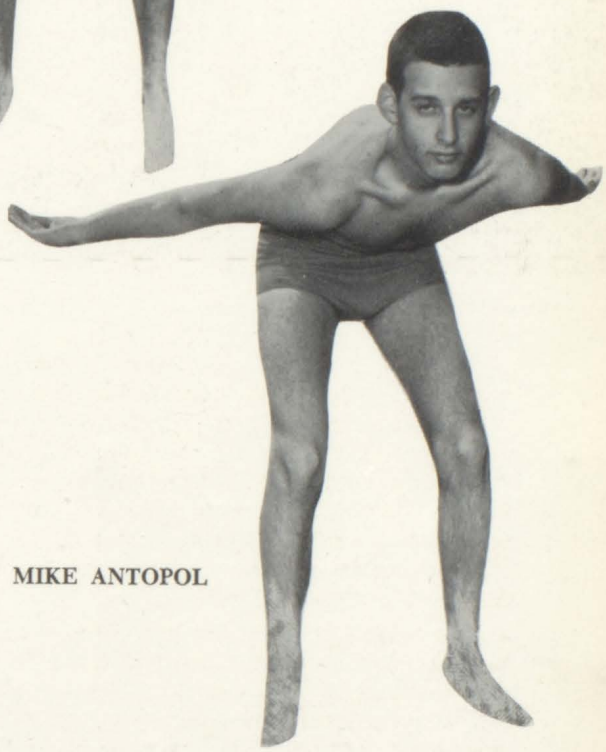

Another merman, who didn't swim as a senior, was back-stroker Bob Lampf who placed sixth in his speciality in this meet.

The following season, the squad led by co-captains Handler and Gorvin, dropped to second in the city standings. However, Handler's value was enormous as he garnered a first in the 100 yd. breast stroke along with a second in the 120 yd. individual medley. Govrin came through with a fourth in the 40 yd. free style.

Mike Antopol, a varsity performer for four campaigns, performed admirably in his specialty the 100 yd. breast stroke. Mike's valuable talents scored many important points for the Indians season after season.
